Mean Burglar Steals Savings Of Children

Get $10, Clothes In Robbery of Fred E. Buergin Home

Burglars ransacking the home of Fred E. Buergin, 2501 Winnebago st., between 8 and 9 o'clock last night, stole a suit of men's clothing, and $10 in cash, $7 of which was the daily savings of the Buergin children.

Entrance to the home was made by cutting a hole in a screen over a rear window and releasing the catch latch.

Discovery of the robbery was made at 9 o'clock when the Buergin family returned from the carnival. The burglary must have been committed between 8 and 9 o'clock, while the family was at the carnival grounds. A house under construction on the next lot is believed to have offered the burglars a place of hiding from which they could watch the family leave.

Patrolman Carl Seeman, who responded, was unable to pick up any clues which might reveal the perpetrator's identity.

Three More To Build One Shorewood Property

Deals were consummated today whereby property in Shorewood was sold to Frank Thiesse of the railroad commission, E. M. Johnson of the school of journalism at the university and Gordon D. Adams of the Wisconsin Life Insurance Co. Each of the latest purchasers in Shorewood has expressed his intentions of building on the newly acquired property which overlooks Lake Mendota and the university.

It is reported that sales on Shorewood property during the past few months has surpassed any previous activity in the property of a Madison subdivision. Since the opening of the new Black Hawk drive through the property, hundreds of Madison people have driven through the residential tract daily.

Slayer Killed By Police In Revolver Duel

St. Paul Police Shoot Man Who Slew Deputy And Escaped

(By the Associated Press)

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Edwin Rust, slayer of Sheriff I. C. Fulkner of Aberdeen, S. D., was shot to death in a gun fight with St. Paul detectives here early today when they sought to arrest him.

Rust had been arrested by the detectives who were unaware of his identity when he drove up to a garage, accompanied by a woman in a stolen automobile. Enroute to the police station, Rust, handcuffed, sprang from the automobile and fled into an alley. He removed the handcuffs in some manner not known.

Meanwhile the woman was questioned and from her was learned Rust's identity. Several detectives went out to the residence where Rust had been living since August 1, under the name of Peter Thorson.

As the detectives pushed open the door of Rust's room they were met by two shots both of which went wild. In the answering fusillade, Rust was struck in the neck, the chest and the hip. He died almost instantly.

A reward of $500 dead or alive, had been offered for Rust's capture. He slew the sheriff while being taken on a train to Aberdeen, South Dakota, to face a robbery charge, and then jumped from the train escaping.

Oil Tank Blast Jars San Pedro

Huge Fire Follows Explosion In California; Million Barrels Burning

(By the Associated Press)

SAN PEDRO, Calif.—A large underground oil tank owned by the General Petroleum Co. exploded here this morning at 9:25 o'clock. The blast was caused by spontaneous combustion and shook the entire city.

Approximately 1,000,000 barrels of oil are burning.

Two companies of fire fighting equipment has been rushed from Los Angeles to San Pedro to protect that district while the harbor departments fight the oil tank blaze.

Fears for the safety of three adjoining tanks and a number of nearby homes are felt as the tank shows signs of boiling over and running down the hillside.

Early reports declare the loss will reach several hundred thousand dollars and may be larger if other tanks are ignited.

The burning tank is directly beneath Fort MacArthur. The military post, however, is not in danger.

All fire fighting apparatus in the Harbor district was summoned to the scene. The tank has a capacity of 500,000 barrels.

'Leans' Give Pitcher Great Support at Big Joint Club Picnic; 200 in Bread Line

On the theory that "there is safety in numbers," the leans yesterday afternoon, at the first joint outing and playfest of the Rotary, Kiwanis, Roxana and Lions club at Bernard's park, put 25 men back of the pitcher in the third inning of the ball game to prevent the fats from overcoming a two-run lead acquired in the first inning. Joe Starr, pitching for the leans, declared he had the greatest support any pitcher ever had. George Lewis, playing with the fats, agreed with the lean pitcher when he was unsuccessful in putting the ball through the throng of fielders.

The tug-of-war, won by Kiwanis from Rotary, after Kiwanis had defeated Roxana, and Rotary had defeated Lions, was protested by the Rotarians who declared that the Kiwanians had tied the end of the rope around a tree. Referee Joe Steinhauer investigated and found Joe Jackson's heavy men had made a slight mistake, that the rope was tied around "Porky" Nesvig.

"Rus" Teckemeyer, Roxana, captured the shoe-race. "Rus" had shoes he could easily distinguish from the other shoes scattered about, and could slide them off and on without untying the laces. J. Rose, Kiwanis, was second and Dr. H. E. Devereaux, Kiwanis, third.

Paul Stark, Kiwanis, proved that a long reach is advantageous, as he could almost reach far enough to win the shot put. He captured first in this event with a throw of 40 feet, nine inches. Lorenz Maisel, Roxana, took second with a throw of 39 feet, 10 inches, and "Bob" Marling third with 37 feet.

After carrying a marble on a spoon without mishap over five tables Clarence Baker, Kiwanis, led other contestants in the spoon and marble race, closely followed by H. H. Hites, Kiwanis, and Lorenz Maisel, Roxana.

"Dave" Wheeler, Rotary, won the three-ball putting contest, after tying with a mark of seven with Asa Groves, Roxana and James Barclay.

The novel horseshoe pitching contest, each entrant throwing four shoes with the right hand and four with the left, "ringers" only counting, was won by Ray Baker, Kiwanis, with Harry Teckemeyer, Rotary, taking second place.

Approximately 200 members of the four clubs joined the "bread line" following the con[illegible] hunger was appeased with a barbecue supper served under the direction of "Porky" Nesvig.

Dr. William F. Lorenz.

Charge Lieutenant Governor Unfit For Office; Honor Lorenz

(By the Associated Press)

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Vilas Whaley, Racine, was elected commander of the Wisconsin department of the American Legion by a unanimous vote at the final session of the annual convention here this morning.

La Baron Harper, Superior; Dr. William F. Lorenz, Madison, and Dr. E. G. Carey, Reedsville, were elected vice commanders.

Rev. William E. Berger, Beaver Dam, received a unanimous vote for chaplain. John Bunkhart, Monroe, and Louis Larson, Whitehall, were elected master at arms.

Dr. Lorenz of Madison was nominated for the position of state commander, but declined to accept. The veterans refused to let him go unhonored and he was elected vice commander by acclamation. This was followed by a full ten minutes of cheering.

Chippewa Falls was chosen as the scene of the 1924 convention.

The department declared in a resolution adopted that it considered Lieut. Gov. George F. Comings "unfit to hold a public office."

The Legion's resolution was based upon alleged public utterances by Comings, relative to the national guard which were "insulting and untrue, and reflecting upon our honored dead and unbecoming a person in his position."

The testimony implicating Dr. Keland was given during a John Doe hearing before Judge Ole A. Stolen in Superior court thsi week.

Dr. Keland was taken to court this afternoon. Arraignment was held up until late this afternoon pending the arrival of Judge Stolen.

One Count Is Quashed By State

Defense Tries To Reduce Number of Counts; Jury Is Picked

(By the Associated Press)

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Immediately upon opening of court this morning counsel for Victor H. Arnold, on trial in federal district court here charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, submitted alternative motions asking for quashing of the indictment or for dismissal of 17 separate counts.

The motion to quash the entire indictment was denied without argument.

The motion to quash counts four and eight to fourteen inclusive because the "person" alleged defrauded therein was not defined, also was denied. Joseph Lawler of defense counsel, objected to this decision of Judge C. Z. Luse and took an exception.

Count 31, technical last count, was quashed when Dist. Atty. William H. Dougherty admitted it was not complete in itself and that the government had been unable to discover authority for it.

Argument then began upon counts 23 to 26 inclusive which concern the alleged scheme to secure stock of the company.

The contentions of defense counsel was that the alleged scheme could not defraud in that the notes given for the stock were secured by the same stock which was held in trust.

Following completion of the panel late yesterday afternoon, defense counsel asked that the jury be excused and offered several motions attacking the indictment for consideration of the court pending the filing of formal written motions.

In all 17 of the 31 counts in the indictment were attacked specifically and the indictment as a whole was ridiculed by defense counsel.

Dist. Atty. William H. Dougherty asked the court to permit him to argue the motions of the defendant's attorneys in the morning which was granted. Court adjourn-

To Aim Bill Against Blue Sky Projects

Illinois Congressman Is Speaker At Meet Here Today

Morris L. Mendenhall of Indiana was elected president of the National Association of Securities commissioners at the closing session of their annual meeting here.

Thomas B. Conner of Georgia was elected first vice president; Stacy W. Wade, North Carolina, second vice president and A. G. Davis of Illinois, secretary and treasurer.

E. E. Dennison, representative in congress from Illinois, and sponsor of the Dennison bill, aimed at federal control of sales of securities, was the speaker of the morning session at the National Association of Securities commissioners this morning.

He asked the support of the securities commissioner in obtaining federal legislation, declaring that the states which have blue sky laws cannot protect themselves so long as telephones and the mails permit the sales of undesirable stocks in their states.

"I am going to introduce a bill at the next session of Congress, which if passed will stop at least part of the losses resulting to the public year after year through the sale of fraudulent and worthless securities."

The commissioners went into executive session at the completion of Cong. Dennison's talk, which will continue until the convention adjourns shortly after 4 p. m. today.

During the afternoon the resolutions committee will report as will the other committees. Election of officers will be held and the convention city for the coming year selected.

Prof. W. H. Twenhefel of the geology department of the university told the commissioners that there is no oil to be found in the state so far as his department has been able to determine.

Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, addressing the National Association of Securities commissioners at their annual banquet last night, declared he considered the "Blue Sky" law one of the best on our statutes and the most deserving of enforcement.

"Wisconsin," he said, "has lost millions in gold bricks. The average man has more difficulty in keeping his money than in making it. People as a whole are ignorant of investments and securities. I am glad that I was able to have a share in the enactment of Wisconsin's Blue Sky Law. I brought this matter to the attention of the Governor and he incorporated his recommendation for a Blue Sky law in his next message to the legislature. Our present law is the result. I believe this is a step in the right direction; yet I feel that we must yet provide a law that is more forcible. We must put teeth in our Blue Sky legislation."

One of the most interesting dresses of the session was by Edward A. Schwaab, special representative of the national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertisers, who told of fraud exposures in which his organization had been active.

The truth on advertising campaign, he declared, had gone a long way to driving fraud out of legitimate business enterprises, and after that point had been reached, the vigilance committee turned its attention to the oil fields, and there found a wealth of material.

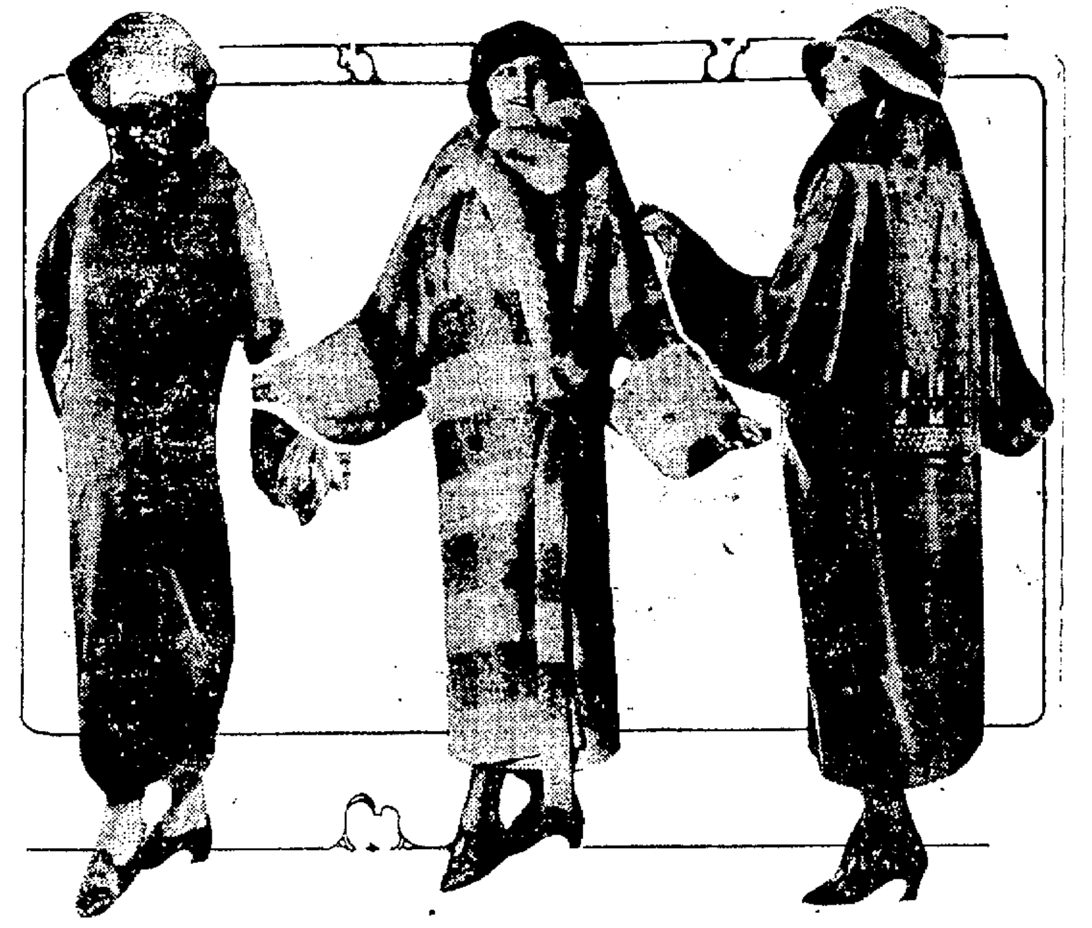
Fall Coat Problem Is Next Issue



Vacation plans are all made and in many instances the holiday jaunt is a thing of the past. It is legitimate, therefore, to turn one's thoughts to one's fall wardrobe and "helpful hints" are therefore in order.

One's problem in the direction of a fall coat would be much simplified if one could choose one of the stunning models pictured here. All are fairly conservative in outline and color and the fur trimmings are not only beautiful and becoming but add to the warmth and therefore to the practicability of the garments.

The models shown on the right and left are of "toast" crepe and trimmed with bands of seal. The one on the left is unusual in cut and trim. It is a decidedly straight line model and the circular cut to the front with its irregular fur banding is as attractive as it is unusual. From a narrow band starting at the middle of the coat hem the fur circles around the side closing growing wider until it reaches the waist where the garment is fastened with a button, then narrows toward the neck where a huge standup collar buttons snugly around the throat. Graduated cuffs of the same fur finish the sleeves which are quite snug fitting. The graduated nature of the trimming on this coat may give a suggestion to those who are planning to have an old coat remodeled as a means of concealing an undesirable but necessary piecing.

The other "toast" crepe model, pictured on the right, is an entirely different cut. It would possibly prove a more generally becoming and therefore more practical garment. The bottom is square cut and a slight fullness is introduced on each side of the back skirt panel. Embroidery is used to trim the upper part of the coat and large cuffs of seal finish the loose sleeves and the large turnover collar is of the same fur.

The coat in the center is one of those stunning plaid affairs of gray and black rough wool. It has a large patch pocket on the right side fastened with a button, a side tie of self-material and an uneven hem. Huge collar and cuffs of platinum fox fur give luxuriousness to the model.

Diagnosis of Coolidge Coup in Naming Slemp Shows Clever Political Plan in '24

Here Are Four Reasons Why Southerner Was Picked

By GEORGE M. HEIL.

Politicians who have recovered from the jolt handed out by President Calvin Coolidge when he named C. Bascom Slemp his presidential secretary, now are trying to figure out the ways and wherefores of the strategic move which took official Washington off its feet.

Coolidge has the reputation of being a tight-lipped Yankee and as a result politicians except possibly a favored few, are doing their own guessing as to the new president's motives in executing his coup.

Close students of the game of politics profess to see four possibilities in the Slemp appointment.

FIRST, an indirect avowal of Coolidge' candidacy for the republican nomination in 1924.

SECOND, an attempt to win over to the Coolidge banner southern delegates to the convention in 1924.

THIRD, an alliance with the political forces of former Governor Lowden of Illinois, candidate for the republican nomination in 1920, or.

FOURTH, a declaration of war against the Lowden wing of the republican party.

Official Washington is unanimous in the opinion that the Slemp appointment is purely a political move.

Slemp is a republican leader in Virginia and a former congressman. He is one of the outstanding G. O. P. figures in the south and is regarded as THE MAN to control southern convention delegates.

C. bascom Slemp, newly appointed presidential secretary.

This gives color to the possibility that Coolidge now is laying his lines to control the 1924 G. O. P. convention before public announcement of his candidacy is made.

Inasmuch as Slemp was one of the chiefs of the nomination campaign organization of Lowden in his 1920 fight the appointment means either that Coolidge is bidding for the Lowden strength of 1920 or else is attempting to forestall any plans Lowden may have for 1920 and this is tatamount to a declaration of political war.

However, the latter possibility is scouted in Washington as it is remembered that Lowden was a luncheon guest of Coolidge only a few days prior to the announcement of the Slemp appointment.

Apparently this would indicate that the republicans are rallying to the Coolidge standard more rapidly than was expected and may serve to prevent the death of President Harding making the G. O. P. nomination race a free-for-all.

New Sorority Lodge Planned Here

WORK is well under way on the new Alpha Xi Delta sorority house which is being constructed on the shore of Lake Mendota at 12 Langdon street. The building, which was designed by James R. and Edward J. Law, local architects, is to be distinctly English in type, developed in brick laid in English garden-wall bond. Aristocratically beautiful in detail, it will be one of the finest sorority lodges in this section of the country.

Alpha Xi Delta was founded in 1893 at Lombard college. The local organization was founded in 1904 and the first house was built at 434 Sterling court in 1910. The active chapter roll numbers 40 members. Officers are: Beatrice Walker, president, Madison; Emmy Lou Sheltman Louisville, Ky., vice president; Pauline Temples, Tulsa Okla., treasurer; Lila Ekern, Madison, secretary.

Alumnae in charge of the new project here are: Mrs. Pembroke Brown, Champaign, Ill., chairman; Calla Andrus, Alma Runge, Helen Davis, Madison; Mrs. Arthur B. Hoiheimer, Chicago; and Marion Mochlenpah, Milwaukee.

Defense Asks Dismissal Of Arnold Case

ed at 5:30. The jury had been selected an hour before.

The venire was exhausted by peremptory challenges and six bystanders were called by the Marshal at the order of Judge Claude Z. Luse, presiding, before the chosen dozen was named. Both state and defense used its entire quota of challenges.

In his instructions to the jury the court ordered silence on the case outside of court and forbade them to read newspaper accounts of the trial.

The attack on the indictment appeared to surprise the government attorneys, Mr. Dougherty declaring himself unready to defend the specific instances before morning.

The indictment alleges Arnold planned three separate and distinct schemes to defraud and cites 31 counts. Joseph Lawler of Chicago, just before court adjourned for the night briefly declared he will attempt to prove in the morning that the indictment is bad in not confining itself to one count. He suggested the charges should have been contained in three separate indictments instead of one. He also averred that the last count known as number 31, which sets forth no specific acts to defraud but is merely in the language of the statute, is not sufficient to stand alone.

He read a passage from statute two fifteen of the penal code, under which the indictment is brought which says specifically that the language of the statute is not sufficient alone.

The attack began when Hal S. Corbett of New York, chief defense attorney and formerly judge of Kentucky circuit court, moved that counts four, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen and fourteen violated a rule as old as English jurisprudence in that conviction on any of these counts would not bar future prosecution.

This rule he declared was so widely accepted as to require no authorities but offered to cite them. This Judge Luse declared unnecessary.

The language of the indictment in each of these counts is to the effect that Arnold in further[illegible] his alleged first scheme to defraud, mailed a certain letter to a certain "person."

In count four the person is named "Westfield Bank" and in counts eight to fourteen inclusive "Taylor Camp and Company."

Corbett declared these not persons and not declared corporations which are legal persons, in the indictment. If these companies are partnerships and his client convicted, Corbett said, future charges could be based on the same grounds naming individual partners as the defrauded parties.

Corbett hit fundamentals of counts twenty-three to twenty-six inclusive which allege the second scheme by declaring no one who accepted Arnold's proposition to stockholders as set forth in the indictment could lose anything.

The proposition of the defendant, the indictment narrates, was that he offered to protect stockholders of the Madison Bond Co., of which he was then president, by exchanging for their stock certificates his personal notes for five years at par value of the stock and paying a specified interest rate. Prosecution holds these notes worthless and on that assumption bases part of its proof of this scheme, but Mr. Corbett averred that the indictment itself showed no fraud was committed because it contains verbatim copies of Arnold's offer to the stockholders. In the offer Arnold announced himself willing to give his personal notes for the stock at par and also to put all stock surrendered to him in a trustee's hands as security for the notes. Corbett declared title to this mortgaged stock never passed to Arnold and that had his notes been worthless stock owners could foreclose and obtain their original stock from the trustee.

Counts 28 to 30 inclusive were attacked by Lawler on grounds that they have no connection with the other counts, alleging a third scheme to defraud, this time the bondholders of the company.

Discussion of these motions and of whether witnesses will be excluded while not actually testifying was postponed until morning.

Miller Bee Library Dedicated at Convention of Honey Men

While bee men from all over Wisconsin and northern Illinois, as well as a few from every corner of the nation, were gathered at agricultural hall today. Pres. Birge accepted the Dr. Charles C. Miller Memorial Agricultural library. The morning talks were a review of Dr. Miller's life.

C. P. Dadant, Hamilton, Ill., spoke on Leading Beemen of the Past Generation, and after summarizing the lives of Huber, Berlepsch, Schirach, Reaumur and Dzierzon, he said:

"And now we come to one of the most noted bee keepers of late years, the late Dr. C. C. Miller who was called the 'Nestor of American Beekeeping.'

"Dr. Miller was one of the early pioneers. In 1885 he wrote a little book, "A Year Among the Bees." In it the reader can see the idea of contraction after the early breeding. He wrote successively, "Forty Years Among the Bees" and "Fifty Years Among the Bees."

"Dr. Miller died in 1921 and the beekeepers of America appreciated his services to such an extent that a subscription was organized to establish a Beekeepers' library as a memorial, under the name of "The Miller Memorial Library."

Kenneth Hawkins, general sales manager of the G. B. Lewis Co., Watertown, Wis., said in part:

"We are gathered here today in a fitting commemoration of the good that Dr. Miller did for beekeepers. With his matchless gift of clear thinking, he looked past the lesser problems of the money producer and found these principles which have brought a new beekeeping era to the world.

"By his recognition of bee behavior and his analysis of it, he worked out methods which have become the standard of the commercial beekeeping world. We are indeed fortunate that he was an American."

Following the addresses this afternoon the bee men visited, went swimming, or amused themselves until 7:30 when "Stray Straws," the reading of letters from Dr. Miller's friends, was begun.

Tomorrow morning a pilgrimage to the home of Dr. Miller at Marengo, Ill., will be begun. The men will arrive there for lunch and will hold a memorial service in the afternoon.

Ohio Guards Against More Ku Klux Riots

1,000 Members Hold Meet Near Scene Of Street Battle

(By the Associated Press)

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio.—Barred from holding a meeting here, following the anti-Ku Klux Klan rioting Wednesday in which four men were wounded in a gun battle, approximately 1,000 members of the Klan met at Richmond, 12 miles west of here, late last night, police said this morning.

Authorities said they did not know what transpired at the meeting. Mayor Hawkins last evening ordered police to prevent public demonstrations of any kind the ban extending to even small gatherings on the streets. Precautions against another outbreak will be continued.

Darwin L. Gibson, 35, local Klan leader, who is in a local hospital with a bullet at the base of his brain, is expected to recover, it was said today. Frank Veltry is being held at the county jail charged with shooting with intent to kill Gibson. Hohn De Santis, said to have been one of Gibson's assailants who was shot through the left eye, is in a critical condition.

In a statement one local Klan demanded the resignations of Mayor Hawkins and Chief of Police Carter, declaring Wednesday night's disorder was the result of lax law enforcement.

THE HAGUE—The permanent court of international justice today handed down a decision against Germany in the case involving the use of the Kiel canal by foreign vessels. Standard Oil to Raise Gas Price to 20 Cents by Monday, Is Belief

Will Make Decision After Surveying Condition In S. Dakota

CHICAGO—An increase by Monday in the price of gasoline in Chicago and the middle west is likely. Whether the new price will be 20 cents a gallon or higher may be decided before Monday by the Standard Oil Co., after a survey of the situation in South Dakota.

In that state, the pioneer in the price war, that has raised the price from 16 to 20 cents, Gov. McMaster issued a statement yesterday saying a permanent fair price could not be fixed until an investigation is made of costs and distribution.

After Standard Figures.

On receipt of a message to the effect the board of directors of Standard Oil, who met to consider the 20-cent price for the middle west, decided to withhold the increase until Governor McMaster completes his investigation. They sent him a telegram offering him all the figures in their possession to assist him in arriving at a fair price.

Official statements in the price war rained on Chicago yesterday.

Gamblers Blamed.

The National Petroleum Marketers' association and various independent companies returned to the skirmish line with various charges chief among which was that L. V. Nicholas, president of the Petroleum Marketers, who blamed gamblers for the high prices, and said 20 cents or even less, was a fair price in Chicago.

France Balks Payment Of American Loan

Will Never Repay Huge Sum, Mellon Will Report, Belief

WASHINGTON.—France has no intention of paying her debt of $4,000,000,000 owed the United States.

This is the message that the American world war foreign debt commission will hear when the members assemble next week at the call of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Mr. Mellon will return from Europe on Saturday, and is expected to summon the commission as soon as he has reported his findings to President Coolidge.

From the information he has obtained, it is understood, he is convinced that France, no matter what the outcome of the Ruhr venture, is without the slightest intention of ever paying back the enormous sums loaned by the American people in her time of greatest need.

London Hears Coolidge Firm On Indemnity

No Change In Attitude On Reparations, Is Word

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—Acting upon cable advices from Secty. Hughes, the American embassy officials in London have madeit clear to the British foreign office that the United States contemplated no departure from its attitude on reparations as taken before President Harding's death and as announced by Secty. Hughes in his New Haven speech.

This disposes of any hope on this side that President Coolidge's accession to office might result in a more active interest by the United States in Europe's problems.

The reiteration of America's policy was conveyed verbally and informallyto the British government.

Twenty-nine sick or crippled parts of Wisconsin are now being children from homes in various treated at the Bradley Memorial hospital of the university. Three of these children are from the state school for dependent children at Sparta, and 20 others are state charges. The counties pay the cost of the medical treatment for in many cases the children's families cannot afford the proper care.

An increase of 5 per cent in the number of package libraries loaned by the university extension division during the last biennium, over the preceding biennium, is shown in the recent biennial report. A total of 17,114 package libraries were sent to 895 different communities in Wisconsin in the last two years.

Divorce Habit Is Menacing U. S. Life, Derlares Justice

(By the Associated Press)

WINONA Lake, Ind. — Divorces are granted in America at the rate of one every four minutes throughout the year, and are more numerous here annually in proportion to total population than in any other country which records marriage statistics. The annual total of decrees for the 48 states is in the neighborhood of 160,000 and is increasing three times as fast as the population. Such are the conclusions of Judge W. H. Thomas of Santa Ana, California, former associate justice of the California District Court of Appeals, drawn from a world survey of marriage and divorce figures in preparation for an American campaign for a national code governing marital relations.

Judge Thomas' survey included 54 countries, and the summary of his study, reaches back into the domestic relations of ancient Rome, Greece, and Babylon. In his conclusions is the suggestion that our national life is seriously threatened by the present status of our family relationships.

"In contrast with our records, one divorce for every nine marriages," Judge Thomas said, "those of France and Germany, our closest competitors, dwindle into insignificance. We have only one rival, Japan. Until recently that nation has been grinding out divorces faster than our own. Now, however, the United States Census Bureau discloses a rapidly mounting table of divorce which far outstrips the ratio of increase in population. Our rate of increase in divorces between 1870 and 1917, was for the entire country, exactly 400 per cent." In 1870, he said, we had 28 divorces for every 100,000 of population; in 1916 the figure was 112 for each 100,000.

"Our country heads the list among the nations of the world in this downward procession. In 1890 there were 33,107 divorces here; in 1916 there were 112,000. In Canada in the whole year of 1913 there were 59 divorces."

Judge Thomas came he rerecently to present his findings to officers of the National Reform Association at the organization's International Conference on Christian Citizenship.

Seventeen states in the Union fix no marriageable age, he pointed out in commenting on our present varied law. In nine of these states —Florida, Maine, Maryland, Rhode Island, Tennessee, and Vermont, the common law ages of 12 for girls, and 14 for boys have been formally recognized by the courts. In 19 states there is no law restraining feeble minded persons from marrying, and only three states forbid miscegentic unions, or marriages between people of different races.

There are now in the United States more than 12,000 married girls under 15 years of age. Approximately 100,000 girls 17 years or younger are married.

"The ned of a uniform divorce law is apparent." Judge Thomas declares. "Disregard for the sanctity of marriage, over-emphasis of sex, under-emphasis of domestic responsibilities, lack of uniformity in the law were among the chief contributing causes that led to the downfall of Rome, of Greece, of Babylon. We cannot allow the rate of divorce in the United States to continue at three times the rate of population increase.

"No logical and sound-thinking person any longer denies that, in certain circumstances, men and women who can not live harmoniously together should be allowed to reconstruct their happiness. No one now argues against the necessity for marriage laws which will make it impossible for the immature and unfit to marry and reproduce.

"Everyone is satisfied that these laws must be uniform. Hence the time for action has come. And because men havedilly-dallied about it, and because, too, the integrity of the family is woman's quest, upon the women of the country must be laid the business of bringing about reform.

"But legislation will not usher in an era of wisely planned marriages. The real hope of the world lies in putting as much painstaking and progressive thought into the great business of mating as we do into the big businesses of our day, and in bringing to bear upon marriage the advanced ideas of science, religion and law, so that we shall be able to offer to young men and women a sensible presentation of the subject that will convince them of the necessity of permanent family relations and assure them of the happiness to be found in a wholesome, family life.

"Unification of marriage and divorce laws is only a partial solution of the problem. There must be early training for marriage and parenthood, and this cannot be provided for by law."

Happier, Healthier Women

by thousands are known to exist in this country because they have been relieved from pain and suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Science in surgery and electricity have advanced greatly during the past fifty years, but treatment of disease by old-fashioned root and herb medicines has never been improved upon. The leader of them all is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which after fifty years of success is today recognized as the standard remedy for female ills and used everywhere for that purpose. Replies to a questionnaire recently sent out to 50,000 women by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass., proved that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it. Isn't this a marvelous record for any medicine to hold?—Adv.

The Preparedness Column

Conducted by the Art-Needlework Section

A Tale with a "Day Before Christmas" Moral

"I made up my mind the day after Christmas, 1922, that I would begin NOW to make next year's Christmas gifts," said a Madison woman while visiting the Art-Needlework Section.

"But you didn't really," we doubted.

"Ah, but I did!" she affirmed triumphantly. "I started that very day, and I already have sixteen gifts—mostly lingerie—embroidered and handmade, laundered, marked with the name of the person destined to receive them and packed away. I took my own time and really enjoyed making them.

"You see, three weeks before Christmas, 1922, I began to feel uneasy about gifts for this one and that one, and that uneasiness grew alarmingly until it was the worry of my waking hours—the hobgoblin of my dreams.

"My friends are fastidious and so am I. I could spend on each just so much and no more, and since I have many friends, that amount was not large. I searched the shops frantically for something appropriate but inexpensive, and returned each time exhausted and vanquished.

"It was then that I decided to make my gifts. Every night I sat plying a hasty needle far into the wee sma' hours. By the 25th, I looked as though I had been drawn through a knothole. My family watched me with concern, and my exhausted and irritable condition was a damper on what should have been the happiest day in the year.

"There was one consolation. I never have heard my friends enthuse over a gift as they did over these inexpensive trifles. I think it was the idea of my having been interested enough to MAKE something with my own handwork on it that pleased them so.

"I was pleased with myself, naturally. I didn't wait for January, 1923, I made a resolution then and there to start NOW to make Christmas and Birthday gifts during my idle moments. I kept it, too," she finished with satisfaction, "and I'm most ready for Christmas right now."

It is particularly for those who are beginning NOW that this column of advance suggestions is conducted.

The Newest Coats

Predict a Straight-line Mode of Unusual Grace

Gerona, Lustrosa, Fashona, Ormondale and the lustrous fabrics are Fashion's faithful allies in the Autumn Mode.

THE slightly circular tendency is frequently apparent in the newest modes but the straight-line silhouette is still the reigning favorite. Heavy embroideries conspire with rich furs to make a wrap a most luxurious thing.

IT is a Dress season in more senses of the word than one. Much effort has been expended by designers on the Frock and the Gown, and you will agree that results certainly warrant the expenditure. Inklings

That Forecast the Autumn Mode

The Circular Trend

WHETHER revealed in circular tiers, in apron effect across the front of a frock, in a circular godet on either side of a coat characterized by its slim, flat back, or in a rippling cavalier cuff, the circular trend in Autumn's outstanding feature.

Furs To the Front

Among Those Present:

Hudson Seal—Red Fox—Ermine — Kolinsky — Viatka Squirrel—Flat Moire Caracul—Taupe Fox—Leopard—Raccoon.

HUDSON SEAL leads in the Fur Wraps, Red Fox in the Fur Trimmings. Leopard and Raccoon are considered most swagger for Sports. Red Fox trimming is seen on leopard coats, which are frequently full length.

AUTUMN will be more than ever a season of Furs. Furs on Dresses, furs on Suits, furs, furs, furs, and more furs on Wraps.

Sharing Honors

REPS and Charmeen share honors for Frocks. The Coat Dress is particularly favored at present and will displace the Suit for many street purposes.

BROCADES influence the mode in Evening Fabrics. Already many fabrics are imitating them. There are the brocades on crepes and chiffons, the Chenille Broches on crepes and diaphonous materials, and the Silk Moires on soft crepes. Satins continue prominent in more mature modes.

Sportswear Notes

Down-the-front fastening characterizes most of the one-piece modes.

Bindings in harmonizing or contrasting colors are very good. Tubular Wool Jersey is quite THE thing for Fall Sportswear. The Golf Coat of brushed wool in striking colors softened by the diffused effect of the long brushed wool.

Flamingo is the newest material for Sports Skirts.

Inklings these are merely gleaned from a view of the new Fall Fashions assembled here. But who can tell in words the wonder and the beauty of them!

Imposing Scenes Unroll Before Winners in The Capital Times Yellowstone Park Trip Contest

(Alice Mahan and Rella Wolcott, winners in The Capital Times' contest, are now traveling westward to the "Wonderland Region" at the expense of this paper. Miss Mahan has sent the following descriptive letter of her trip thus far. Editor's note.)

BY ALICE A. MAHAN

We arrived at Rockford at about 7 o'clock Friday night, found very good accommodations at the Ed-[illegible] hotel, which is just one block [illegible] stations.

[illegible] morning we met Mrs. Rhodes at the C. B. & Q. depot together with the Rhodes' party of twenty-nine. We left Rockford about 11 o'clock. Our first stop was at Rochelle, Illinois for one hour. We scouted around town until about one o'clock. On going back to our train we were each given the number of our car and berth in the Pullman car, but spent most of the day in the observation car, in fact stayed out there until we reached St. Paul.

From Rochelle we went to Savannah, Illinois, where we got our first glimpse of the Mississippi River, from which point the railroad follow the river's course to St. Paul, crossing there to Minneapolis, at Savannah the high bluffs approach closely to the river. Soon after leaving Savannah, Galena Junction is reached, about fourteen miles farther on we come to East Dubuque. Between East Dubuque and Cassville is a fine ride along twenty-eight miles of bluffs of varying heights with the river a constant companion.

Twenty-six miles from Cassville we arrive at Prairie du Chien, fifteen miles from the Prairie we pass Lynxville which is noted for its picturesque bluffs. We are now in DeSoto Wisconsin and pass on through here and Victory, Wisconsin. Seven miles beyond Victory is Genoa which is attractive for the charming sweep of the river. More bluffs—more scenery and we reach La Crosse. From here we go to Winona, Minn., then to Fountain City. We were told that this city is often called "The Rhine of the Mississippi because of its striking resemblance to the certain vine-clad banks that border the Rhine in Germany. Here we reach Alma, a place of great scenic beauty. We are now crossing Lake Pepin. This lake is a singular widening of the river and it extends about twenty-four miles with an extreme width of 14,100 feet. Another six miles and we are at Maiden Rock, is seen the height of I would judge seven hundred or eight hundred feet. This they say is a spot from which the beautiful Indian maiden, Winona, took her "lover's leap."

Eight miles further on we are at the station of Bay City, and for thirty miles there are tracts of forest and stretches of prairie lands. Here we are at Prescott, Wis., which is located between two sloping hillsides. Lake St. Croix is passed—this is surely a mirror in appearance. As we are speeding along the rails we sometimes sweep away from the water and into a rich farming country, but the river is never very far distant.

We are now making the final great bend around the river, and while we were sweltering in the heat of the day, each one is searching for a wrap of some kind, quite a change but very welcome. Here we are at St. Paul Union station, have a half hour here and then off to Minneapolis.

Sunday morning early — passed through Yellowstone River Valley, high above this little place we gaze down on the many little cottages as we pass along on the high trestled road.

12:30 entered Bismarck, N. Dakota. Stop here for ten minutes to take on the last one of our Rhodes Yellowstone party, which increases our number to thirty-three. 12:40 arrive at Mandan and have a fifteen minute wait, so most of us got off the train, took a couple of snap shots of the depot and mailed a few post cards.

I wish you could see the slips this was written on, you can imagine, written hurriedly and while the train was going. Rather than send those few notes to you I am now writing this in our little log cabin at Camp Mandan. This is my first opportunity to write since leaving Rockford. Will write you again tomorrow from Old Faithful Inn. We leave in the morning at 8 o'clock.

RICE LAKE—A Chippewa Indian village, with thirty-five members of the tribe, led by Chief Ira Isham, will be one of the principal attractions at the Barron county fair, to be held here on August 28 to 31.

Change State Road Terminal In Milwaukee

Traffic Congestion Causes Alteration In Highway Routes

(By the Associated Press)

MILWAUKEE— The Milwaukee Journal, in its weekly review of Wisconsin highways today says:

Owing to traffic congestion caused by bridge and other construction work, the state highway terminals in Milwaukee has been temporarily changed from the city hall square to Sixth and Cedar st.

Highway 15 south has been routed south on Sixth st. to First ave. to Virginia st. thence east on Virginia to Clinton where it again picks up its original route. Highway 17 which started from the city hall north now starts from Sixth and Cedar, north on Sixth to Chestnut, east on Chestnut to Juneau ave., picking up its regular course at Van Buren st.

Labor scarcity seems to be holding up most of the construction jobs in southeastern Wisconsin and it is doubtful whether any of these projects will be opened before the middle of September.

Reports from the northern section of the state indicates that the heavy tourist traffic of this season has played havoc with most of the favorite routes. Tourist travel is still heavy.

The outstanding feature of the week is the completion of highway 31 between Columbus and Beaver Dam. This detour was taken off during the past week which now gives uninterrupted travel between Madison and Fond du Lac.

Highway 29 between Hartford and Neosho is now open to traffic although the shoulders have not been completed as yet.

Out Making Friends For A New Store

It seems funny that any store should sell merchandise for a loss. But when a store can't move the same merchandise without a greater loss—it's good business. Our Summer stocks could be sold in bulk to an outside sales company and our worry would be over. But we won't do this. We are going to sell them to the people of this community and make friends for the new store. There are hundreds of bargains in over $12,000.00 worth of stock for Saturday.

They moved as fast as the wind, sometimes even faster.

Hermes, the messenger god, is seen here as represented in a statue.

The goddess of love and beauty was Aphrodite. She was married to a lame god. They had a son who was called Eros. He was the little god of love (the Romans spoke of him as Cupid).

Ares was the son of Zeus and Hera. His parents spent much of their time quarreling, so it seems natural that Ares should have been the god of war.

Athena was the goddess of wisdom. She was said to have been born from the brain of Zeus. The people of the great Greek city of Anthens looked upon her as their defender.

Herms, the messenger god, wore a winged cap and winged shoes.

"That's wonderful," said Baby Bunty. "But there are a few more blocks left, Uncle Wiggily. "Make it higher."

"I'm afraid if I do it will fall down," said Mr. Longears.

"Oh, that will be more fun than anything!" laughed Baby Bunty.

So very carefully Uncle Wiggily piled up more blocks, until the tower was almost as high as a baby mountain. Bunty clapped her paws again and called:

"Build it up higher, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Oh, but if it falls," whispered the bunny.

"That will be the best fun of all!" laughed Baby Bunty.

So very carefully, Uncle Wiggily piled the last of the blocks on top of the tip of the tower. And as he and Bunty looked at it, all of a sudden, into the pig lady's house stalked the Woozie Wolf.

Ha! Ha! laughed the Wolf, as he saw the two rabbits. "I shall have some fine ear nibbles now!" And he waved his tail from side to side. And he waved his tail against the tower of blocks.

"Bang!" Down they fell with a clatter and crash.

"Oh, my goodness! Thunder! We're going to have a lightning storm!" howled the Wolf, as the blocks tumbled about him. "And I'm so afraid of lightning! I'm going to run home! I'll nibble your ears another time!" And away he ran.

"I don't care if you never come back!" laughed Baby Bunty. "And wasn't it a good thing, Uncle Wiggily, that you made such a high tower with my blocks?"

"Indeed it was, Baby Bunty," laughed the rabbit. And if the toothpick doesn't pour vinegar into the sugar bowl, trying to make lemonade for the spoon holder, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the peddler dogs.

[illegible] cake—Make and [illegible] lay- [illegible] before [illegible] milk. Pour into buttered muffin tins, and bake twenty-five minutes in a brisk oven. This recipe makes twelve muffins.

A NEW PIE RECIPE

African Apple Pie—Three-quarters cup water, one-half cup sugar, four apples, two tablespoons lemon juice, two-thirds cup dates, one teaspoon butter, one-half cup walnut meats.

Put sugar and water in saucepan and boil three minutes. Wipe and pare apples. Cut in eights and remove cores. Cook apples in syrup a few at a time until transparent. Break walnut meats in pieces. Wash dates and cut in strips, discarding stones. Line pie plate with pastry, cover with half the apples, sprinkle with half the dates. Cover with remaining apples, nuts and dates. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Dot over with butter and pour on syrup remaining from apples. Cover with pastry and bake thirty-five to forty-five minutes in hot oven.

SUGGESTIONS

Washing Blankets—When washing blankets wash through one water in usual way. Put on line and with the hose rinse thoroughly. This saves handling them two or three times and they look better than when rinsed in a tub.

Cleaning Furs—To clean white furs take some flour and just dampen with gasoline, rub well through fur, roll up in white cloth for thirty minutes, then shake the fur until all the flour is removed, when it will be spotless.

Mrs. Thompson's Advice

GIRL WANTS TO MEET MAN NEXT DOOR

Hasn't Been Friendly With Him for Years; How Shall She Meet Him?

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: I am fond of a young man who lives next door. We were brought up together until he went away to the army and I went away to school. At present we are both at home, but we aren't friendly as we were before. Can you tell me what to do to gain his friendship again? BOBBY.

Since you have been friends nearly all your lives there is no need to stand on ceremony with him. Persuade your mother to ask him over to dinner some night, then exert yourself to be as charming and entertaining as possible. Thus you will lay the foundation for a new comradeship.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Recently a crowd of girls, including two of my best friends, called at my home dressed in knickers. I felt dreadfully, as I do not like them and never imagined real ladies wore them, for I know several who do wear them and they are not the kind of girls I care for.

Do you think I have been mistaken in choosing my friends? Was it just because they were dressed in such costumes that they acted so out of place? They were not even lady-like. The boys were thoroughly disgusted with them and said they never knew how to treat a girl who dressed in those things."

Now the girls snub me because I did not treat them better. I could not treat them right, as it was all such a surprise and some of them were strangers and married women, too.

Should I write and explain, or should they as friends apologize to me? Must I lower my ideals of dress as well as actions in order to keep these friends?

ANXIOUS HOSTESS.

There is nothing objectionable to the knicker costume, as far as I can see. The attire is comfortable and practical for hiking, outings and various sports. Some women wearing knickers lose their poise for the time being and they act in a conspicuous and objectionable way. But other women are just as lady-like and refined as when they are attired in skirts and conventional dress.

I wonder if you and the young men of whom you speak are fair and broad-minded in your attitude toward knickers. Before you condemn them so heartily, think the matter over and decide just what is objectionable about them.

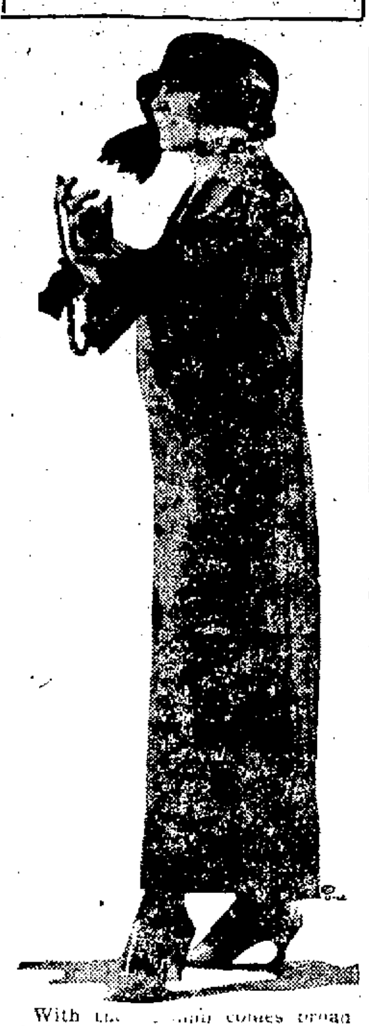
I would not advise you to write and apologize, or to expect an apology from your friends. Speak as if nothing had happened, and they will probably meet you in the same spirit.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been a widow several years and have not had a home of my own since my husband died. I have lots of friends but would like to have a home of my own. I have met a very nice man who is a widower with two children and he wants to marry me. I am sure I love him and that he loves me, but my parents on both sides disapprove of this match, as he is twelve years older than myself. Also they say our children would not get along, as I have three myself. I don't see how I can give him up as I am happy only with him.

BROWN EYES.

I think you are old enough to know your own mind. If you love the man marry him. Of course it is risky to combine two families into one, but if you are the right sort of woman you will be good to the children of the man you love and most likely he will be good to your family.

Flaring Slevees Feature of Dress



With th[illegible] comes broad cloth. The woman who owns [illegible] smartly made dress of broadcloth may rest assured that she is modishly garbed. Broadcloth lends a certain dignity to the wearer that many other fabrics do not give. The model shown here features a narrow surplice collar and a fairly wide pannel in the back. The sleeves which are tight at the elbow and flaring at the wrists are very good this fall. The brown stitching gives it an individual touch.

The Story of an Artist's Wife

As Told to Grace Phelps

THE FIRST REHEARSAL

It rather irritated me that Barclay should think me so unsophisticated and little able to take care of myself to be in any danger from no matter how fascinating a Frenchman! Just the same I was not displeased to find him capable of jealousy. It lessened the little fear that had been gnawing at my heart ever since I heard Vera Deeming's voice behind that screen and listened to that vague but, to me, all too significant conversation.

Resolutely I put it away from my mind now and centered my thoughts on the joyous time that was before me. My appointment with Inez was at eleven o'clock, but when I reached her apartment she had not yet finished breakfast, which she was eating in a scarlet kimona, flaming with golden dragons. In the morning light she looked older and I wondered if there might not have been two sides to Barclay's story about his friend whom she had thrown over. She looked, somehow, as if she had suffered.

"Henri will be here in a few minutes with Victor," she said. "He has the score and will play for us. Have some coffee?"

She rang a little silver bell and a colored maid came in with another cup for me. I had little time to observe the luxuriousness of her surroundings when the door bell rang and two men were ushered in. I expected Inez to rush away to her bedroom but she did not stir, merely giving her hand lazily to each man in turn and letting him bow over it.

It was the first time I had seen a man kiss a woman's hand and it gave me a curious feeling as if I were in a play, which changed to embarrassment when Inez introduced them and the ceremony was repeated with my own brown paw!

I could not help flushing but I hope I didn't show any other sign of awkwardness. Henri was a tall, very dark complexioned man with bright black eyes and a Charlie Chaplin mustache. He was dressed as I had seen pictures in fashion books of "what the Well Dressed Man Wears," with a long tailed coat and striped trousers. The maid, I had noticed through the doorway into the hall, had relieved him of a silk hat and a cane.

Victor was quite different. From his last name, which I have forgotten—and anyway it never mattered in the Village—I decided he was an Italian. He was equally dark but his eyes were bigger and softer than the Frenchman's. He was not so tall and was carelessly dressed in comparison. He was, as I learned a sculptor of more than a little fame with a queer hobby that I shall tell about later on when the Provinceabout later on. He was an amateur musician too and was always called on when the Provincetown Players needed music for their plays.

"You can't dance in that tight skirt," Inez said "and our costumes won't be made till next week. "She stood up and let the kimona drop from her shoulders as she spoke, revealing herself in a Grecian costume. "Come into my room and let me see if I can't fit you out with something like this that will leave your arms and legs free."

I followed meekly enough though the idea of wearing such a scanty costume rather took my breath away. Inez however, was not at all embarrassed nor were the two men.

"Vay-ree nice feet," commented Victor glancing at me critically when I returned barefoot and costumed like Inez, and swung around on the piano stool.

Henri had changed in the meantime and now appeared in a costume that I recognized as Egyption and one which showed his splendid figure off to good advantage. The dance, it appeared, was Egyptian in character. I was a poor slave girl, appealing to Inez and Henry as Isis and Osiris. Osiris falls in love with the slave and rouses the jealousy of Isis who steps down from her throne and kills the girl.

"It ees a part I like very much," Henri's eyes twinkled at me. "Let's go!"

She Proves Fascinating in Costume Plays

Alice Terry Takes Lead in Drama with Odd Name

ALICE TERRY, lovely wife of Rex Ingram, is creating a new part in the screen version of "Scaramouche," a Metro production. These costume plays certainly make a beautiful woman look more beautiful. In this play they say that the men all have wonderful costumes too, and many changes. Lewis Stone wears twelve different costumes and Ramon Navarro eighteen. The play is of the period of the French Revolution.

Miss Terry's last two pictures were "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Conquering Power."

Alice Terry in "Scaramouche."

MOVIE CHIT CHAT

Several of the most popular players have been added to the cast of "Flaming Youth" in which Colleen Moore is featured. They are: Milton Sills, Elliott Dexter, Sylvia Breamer, Myrtle Stedman, Walter McGrail and Ben Lyon.

Pretty interesting cast for Vitagraph's "The Man from Brodney's." It includes J. Warren Kerrigan, Alice Calhoun, Pat O'Mally and Bertram Grassby. (The old villain—young one, rather)

Among the pleasant little pastimes Wallace Beery indulges in, in Norma Talmadge's coming picture, "Ashes of Venge[illegible] [illegible]ng a sword through a soldier whose sweetheart he has insulted; "sicking" a huge dog on the brother of the soldier he has killed, and rounding up all those who hate him, sticking them in a tower and hiring a professional to torture them.

Lois Wilson says violent emotion ruins a girl's complexion.

Mr. and Mrs. (Marilynn Miller) Pickford celebrated their first wedding anniversary at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio in Hollywood recently.

Holbrook Blinn has completed the picturization of "The Bad man."

CORINNE GRIFFITH IN FIVE-REELER

In her first five-reel picture, Corinne Griffith was leading woman opposite William Duncan, and Nell Shipman was ingenue. Miss Griffith will be seen next in "Six Days," a Goldwyn picture.

TRAINING FOR "THE VIRGINIAN"

Kenneth Harlan has been put through an intensive course of training by twenty-five real working cowboys, and will be seen in the actual work of punching cows in "The Virginian."

VIOLA DANA FINDS HERSELF IN PREDICAMENT

Viola Dana is the petite little star of "Her Fatal Millions" which will be seen at the Parkway for the last times today and tomorrow. The dainty comedienne has a story in this her latest picture, which is exactly suited to her talents. Through a series of amazing and mistaken incidents, Mary Bishop, played by Miss Dana, finds herself the wife (?) of a millionaire and unable to escape from her strange predicament. The situations that ensue are ludicrous. Kate Price, Huntly Gordon, Allan Forrest, and Edward Connelly share honors with the star. Bobby Vernon in a Christie comedy called "Plumb Crazy" has the role of an ignorant Swedish plumber and when he gets the gas pipes and the water pipes all mixed up there is enough fun for anybody. The latest Pathe Review and the latest Kinogram News Weekly completes the program. Coming Sunday, William Desmond will be seen in "Shadows of the North," a crashing romance of the placer mining country.

TALENTED CAST IN "TEMPORARY MARRIAGE"

"Temporary Marriage," which is now showing at the Strand theatre is said to be one of the outstanding productions of the season.

The characters in "Temporary Marriage" are interpreted by a cast of notable and talented players—a cast which must be called all-star. There are Kenneth Harlan, Mildred Davis, Myrtle Stedman, Tully Marshall, Maude George, and Stuart Holmes, players who are top favorites everywhere—players who are rich in dramatic gifts.

The added features are a Snub Pollard comedy "Dig Up" and latest Fox News.

HARDING FUNERAL PICTURES ARRIVE

To the Madison Theatre goes the prestige of bringing to Madison the first pictures of the funeral at Marion, O., last Thursday. The subtitles are as follows: 1—Home at last. No hint of pomp marks last ceremony for the late chief executive. 2—Mrs. Harding's sorrowful home-coming. 3—The casket is followed by President Coolidge, former president Taft, Secretary Hughes and members of the Cabinet. 4—In the streets of the little town he knew so well. 5—At the home of his aged father where the floral offerings overflow the house, porch and lawn. 6—The homage of his neighbors. 7—Leaving the Harding home for his last resting place. 8—Past the Marion Star where he was known simply as "W. G." 9—At the cemetery. 10—The journey's end—at rest as a nation mourns. The feature picture shown, "Can a Woman Love Twice" starring Ethel Clayton, is a production that should appeal to all who appreciate the finer things of life. It is a rich and welcome model of screen entertainment, as satisfying as a piece of exquisite tapestry.

Strange Sea Monster Is Found At Miami

MIAMI, Fla. — A strange sea monster drifted ashore on Key Biscay a few miles southeast of Miami. Weighing about one thousand pounds and dead less than 24 hours it presented a sight never before duplicated in these waters, fishermen who saw it said. The monster is about eight feet long, four feet in depth and only one foot across. It has a head, if it can be called that, shaped in a semi-circle measuring from back to belly, across the face. Large eyes are but a few inches from a remarkably small mouth and in the way of fins it has two small ones, but a few inches long, back of the gills.

Attic Angel's Association Is One Of Oldest In Madison; Are Prolific Of Real Service

Of the many welfare agencies contributing to [illegible] in Madison, the Attic Angels' association ranks among the first. It was started in [illegible] by four young woman college graduates of the city, who wanted to do some useful work. Each took a poor family as friendly visitors, sewing for the babies and children, advising the parents, and even finding employment for them. The materials for the sewing came mostly from the attics of the [illegible]' homes—hence the association's name. There are now 25 active members, and an auxiliary of more than 50 members from the older members.

In the early days the group had sewing bees, an annual Christmas tree and entertainments for the needy. Furnishing of layettes still is part of its work. When the Public Welfare association was organized the relief work of the Attic Angels was given over to the new agency. Then the girls raised funds to support a visiting nurse. This was the beginning of the work which has been carried on for many years by Miss Mary Saxton.

Few enterprises of the kind have been so prolific of real good, the history of the work shows. Miss Saxton, who makes house calls wherever she is needed, rounded out a total of 2,756 calls last year alone. When necessary she sends the patient to a hospital or calls in a doctor. She receives small fees for her work when the families are able to pay, but this income amounts to only a small part of what the association annually needs for its activities.

Another activity of the Attic Angels is the infant health center held every Wednesday at the Community house in South Madison. Various Madison physicians have given their services, and at present it is in charge of Miss Saxton, assisted by Drs. D. R. Mendenhall, H. M. Kay, M. J. Coluccy and H. C. Johnson.

The Attic Angels keep card files of every baby brought to the clinic, so that the progress of each child may be carefully watched. From eight to sixteen babies are cared for every week, the number for the year totalling 573. The clinic is held in a somewhat bare room with chairs along the side and card tables covered with woolly baby blankets. A mother enters, takes her place in the line of chairs, undresses the baby, and wraps it in the blanket. Then she carries it to the back of the room where Miss Saxton weighs and measures it. Baby then goes to a table at the front of the room where the doctor and the nurse examine it and give the mother advice as to diet, care, medicine, clothing, and other needs. Articles of clothing are supplied if necessary. Nearly 250 garments have been given out this year.

The work of the association and its nurse is growing every year. During the past 12 months 314 new patients have been added to the list of those for whom Miss Saxton ministers, and 135 new children have been brought to the infant health center.

The Attic Angels' association is one of the agencies enlisted in the Community Union for the most economical and efficient administration of all the 14 member organizations.

Deputy Hired By Dance Hall Loser In Ruling

The state industrial commission announced today that a deputy sheriff hired by the owner of a dancing pavilion, is not an employe of the county, in a ruling requested by the sheriff of Outagamie county. A deputy sheriff consented to act as police at a dance hall, to guard against intrusion of persons not invited. In an attempt to eject a person who had entered without an invitation, his leg was fractured The commission holds that the deputy sheriff at the time of his injury was not in the employ of the county, in that he was receiving payment from the manager of the dance hall, and was in no way rendering service to the county.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich.—Harry James Schmidt, posing as a naval officer here and arrested 10 days ago for the theft of a Colt revolver, was arrested at St. Joseph, Michigan, today by federal authorities and taken to Grand Rapids. Schmidt appealed in vain for his bride of two weeks, Miss Guro Ryerson, a Milwaukee girl whom he married in Peoria, Ill., to send him "just $50."

Runs 22,000 Miles on Tires That Leak No Air

A new airtight, puncture-proof inner tube, which in actual test ran 22,000 miles without the loss of air, although punctured many times, is the proud achievement of Frank C. Hughes, of the Airlox Rubber Co., 2053 Jackson Blvd., Chicago. It is inflated with air and has a leak-proof valve-cap. Both puncture troubles and valve leaks are banished enabling one to keep tires up on proper air pressure, and hence double casing mileage. Yet Airlox Tubes cost no more than ordinary tubes. If you want to try these wonderful tubes at Mr. Hughes risk, write him today as he wants to place these tubes on a few cars in this territory and has a very liberal offer to anyone who wishes to try them and introduce them.

Building Association of Theta Chapter
Alpha Xi Delta

First Mortgage 15 Year 6 per cent Serial
GOLD BONDS

Earnings: The entire income of the Building Association of the Theta Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta is pledged to meet the principal and interest on this loan as it matures. The building will be occupied by the Alpha Xi Delta Sorority and all expenses will be paid by the sorority. We consider this loan well secured as to principal and interest, based upon the fair market value of the property at this time. The great number of Alumni members adds further strength.

Insurance: Fire Insurance to the sum of $50,000 must be carried upon the property, as required by the Trust Deed. The total face value of the policy is assigned to the Trustees for the benefit of the bondholders.

Retirement: Bonds will mature serially at the rate of $1000 per year for the first five years, and $1500 per year for remaining nine years. On July 16, 1938 all remaining bonds mature. The payment of bonds serially gradually strengthens the loan as the amount outstanding decreases.

Location: The Real Estate and Building securing this loan are located on the shore of Lake Mendota near the corner of Wisconsin Avenue and Langdon Street. The lot is a lake shore and connects with the street by a strip of land 10 by 120 feet. This location is in one of the leading residential districts in which the fraternities and sororities are now locating.

Security: This loan is secured by a First Mortgage to Messrs. C. C. Doring and C. T. Ellis, as Trustees, on the land which is 66 by 200 feet together with entrance to Langdon Street 10 by 120 feet. The property was appraised on July 1923 at $30,000. This appraisal was made by two reputable real estate dealers, who have a thorough knowldege of property values in the City of Madison. The Building will cost $64,500, and it will be complete in every detail and will be the most beautiful sorority house at the University.

Nash Motors In Win Over Racine Horlicks

KENOSHA, Wis.—The Nash Motors handed the Racine Horlicks a 4 to 1 defeat in a Midwest league game here on Thursday. Walter Kinney, former Philadelphia hurler, held the enemy to six blows, while the Motors landed on Normal Ballou, making his debut in a Racine uniform, for seven lusty wallops.

The score:

		R	H	E
Nash—	0 1 0 2 0 0 0 1 *	4	7	0

It looks more and more like the Giants again in the National league, and if the New Yorkers do win it will be no more due to the physical abilities of the players than to the mental ability of John J. McGraw.

It is doubtful if ever a manager played as much of the game from the bench as the Giant leader. His men play according to orders and if things go wrong, he is willing to shoulder the responsibility. Only on the bases does he refuse to think for his men.

The Giants have not been without their misfortunes. Bancroft, field leader and shortstop, has been out of the game for a long time: Scott has been hurt and Jonnard is ill. Other pitchers have been unsteady and McGraw has been forced to shift his outfield many times. Yet he keeps his team in the lead, because he is the master of baseball strategy and a leader who can inspire his men to great things.

"Pro" Golfers Preparing For State Tourney

Oshkosh Country Club Arranges To Entertain

OSHKOSH—Preparations are being made at the Oshkosh Country club for the entertainment of the professionals of the state when they meet here next Sunday and Monday for the professional championship of the Wisconsin Professional Golfers' association. It is expected that approximately 30 of the best pros in the state will gather here for the event and some classy golf is promised.

The opening feature of the event will be a pro-amateur low ball foursome, in which each professional will choose an amateur as his partner. It is probable that each professional will bring his partner from his own club but some of them may choose local players. Just whom Tom Rose, the local pro, will chose has not been announced, but it will be one of the best players in the club. Jim Rose, brother of Tom Rose, is president of the association and Manning Vaughn of Milwaukee is secretary.

On Monday, there will be matched play by the professionals themselves for the state title. At the Northeastern Wisconsin Golf association tournament last week some betting was done and the favorites for the championship appears to be Jack Blakeslee of Kenosha and Neil MacIntyre of Fond du Lac. Blakeslee only recently came to the Kenosha club and last year won the professional championship of Indiana.

This tournament will undoubtedly offer some of the finest golf seen in this state in years as every participant is an excellent player. The course at the Oshkosh Country club is in fine shape and is one of the sportiest courses in the state sa that the combination should make for the very best golf.

Roundy Says:

The "Lucky" Seventh Sure Was a Horseshoe—But Not For the Home eTam

Before a packed house with every seat taken Madison dropped the old ball game to the Simmons.

* * *

The crowd deserves a world of credit for their turnout. There must have been at least 1,900 at the game and chances are there were a lot of other seats sold that never got to the gate.

* * *

The pay going fans in a few days will be given the figures no doubt. And I think at least 3,000 tickets were sold.

* * *

Speaking of the game you can take my word for it that La Hail got rather poor support in the pinches. The Blues pulled seven errors and the judging of one fly ball was terrible. Errors will come that is a cinch. But there were some there yesterday that hurt like h——l and were easy ones to get.

* * *

La Hail pitched good ball and for seven innings had those birds up a tree. I have my doubts if they earned over three runs at that off Hank.

* * *

The Blues at that played rattling good baseball and if not for errors that are bound to come they would have won that ball game. They gave that gang a much better ball game than I figured they would.

* * *

For six innings our Blues were just as good as their ball club and I figured that we had them beat. I sat there dumfounded as we led at the beginning of seventh 3 to 2. We then had two down on them and two strikes on the batter and right there and then they get four runs.

* * *

Manager Hughes of the Simmons says: "Madison has a stronger team than we expected to find here and it was the breaks that were with us that helped us to a large extent to win. You can say that this city has as fast a ball team for twice a-week ball as you will find any place in America. Got fine treatment here and would like to visit here again and this city can feel mighty proud of their team for the first year.

* * *

The Simmons boys said that they thought La Hail's short curve ball was a beaut and they found it hard to get hold of and that Dixon, the catcher is weak on low balls but he hit them all here yesterday for extra bases.

* * *

The crowd got a good run for their money and were all satisfied to the limit. The game was good most all the way through and if the locals did not crack in two pinches the old ball would have been 3 to 3 at darkness.

* * *

Steele the Simmons pitcher is from the Pittsburg Nationals. He has been off to a large extent this year and he has not been going good. In spots yesterday he looked great at other times rather bad.

* * *

Elliott played bang up ball in the game and Kleinheinz also was going great. Poellman played a whale of a game at short and Newhouse played a good game.

* * *

How that bird Dixon catching for the Simmons can crack that old ball. And Jackson the left fielder who cracked that homer also hits it on the nose.

* * *

The lineup has some big leaguers: Kope, Philadelphia Nationals; Crutcher, Boston Braves; Beall, White Sox; while every other player that took part in the game was in the association. They also had a few big leaguers on the bench.

* * *

The Blues got a lot of credit for the fine ball they played at the beginning of the seventh inning. The score should have been 3 to 0 in our favor.

* * *

The Simmons are a team that outclasses our boys. They are supposed to do that. They are all big leaguers getting big dough to play and in fact are players that could still be in the big show, some of them at least. They jumped because they get bigger dough in this class of ball. Sounds funny, but they do. Our Blues gave them a surprise party and if that batter in the seventh inning was retired we would have beat them 3 and 2, and still give them two runs they never earned.

* * *

Manager Hughes of the Simmons was getting a stiff neck yelling at his gang out of the dug-out to get out and get runs. He was in an angry mood in the seventh; then someone cracked the ball over the fence with two out and he was smiles from head to foot.

* * *

If Madison beat that gang 3 to 2, not a Blue player would have got out of that park alive. The fans were going nuts with that score 3 and 2 in the Blues' favor.

* * *

Let's talk about another ball game. The Blues play the Nelsons of La Crosse here Saturday and Sunday. The Nelsons are a strong ball club and will give the Blues all they can handle to win.

* * *

The Nelsons have beat the Montagues in a series of games and right now are a team about as strong as the Twin Cities. Foster and La Hail will bend them over in those two games, this Saturday and Sunday.

* * *

Only a few more games left. Keep back of the team. They are doing fine and the crowds show the fans are with them. The boys feel mighty proud of the throng that turned out yesterday. All out Saturday and root for the home gang again. What could be fairer.

"WILD BILL" MAY BOSS THE TIGERS

"Wild Bill" Donovan.

Along with the generally accepted rumors that Ty Cobb will not manage the Detroit Tigers next year comes the report that "Wild Bill" Donovan, one-time pitcher with the team, may return to the club as pilot. Bill took a crack at the managerial game with the Yankees a few years back.

British Stars Eliminated In National Meet

U. S. Women Tennis Players Prove Superior Thursday

FOREST HILLS, N. Y.— American women tennis stars scored another signal victory over their British rivals today when they eliminated two of the three remaining invaders in the round before the semi finals of the national singles championship at the West Side tennis club.

Miss Helen Wills, sensational Berkeley, California, school girl, and Miss Eleanor Goss of New York were the triumphant Americans in two extra set matches that developed the most scintillating play of the tournament. The sturdy coast girl rallied after an uncertain start and, for the second time within a week, vanquished Miss Kathleen Mc Kane, ranking British player, 2-6, 6-2, 7-5, while Miss Goss gained the verdict over Mrs. Nancy Covell in a tensely fought duel, 6-1, 2-6, 8-6.

Mrs. R. C. Clayton, the only British survivor in the singles and Mrs. Molla Mallory, who is seeking her eighth national title, had an easier time reaching the semi finals round. The former disposed of Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston, No. 2, in the American ranking 6-3, 6-1, while the title holder quickly eliminated her youthful rival, Miss Helen Hooker of Greenwich, Connecticut by a similar margin.

The semi-final matches tomorrow afternoon will bring together Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Clayton in the upper half of the draw, while Miss Goss will oppose Miss Wills in the lower half.

Guy Sundt to Issue Call for Grid Men at Ripon; Has Real Job Shaping Team This Year

To Be Assisted By "Scotty"; Have Tough Schedule

RIPON.—Fall football practice will commence immediately upon the reopening of the college. Early training may be called a few weeks before the resumption of academic work. This announcement has been made by Guy M. Sundt, head of the coaching department, who has been attending the summer session of the University of Wisconsin.

Sundt will be faced this year with the difficult task of shaping an almost entirely new team as practically every member of the regular eleven which represented the Crimson last year has been lost by graduation or transfer. The new ruling of the Midwest conference of which Ripon is now a member, barring freshmen from competition in conference games will also affect Ripon's chances at honors.

Ralph Scott, member of Walter Camp's mythical all-American team of three years ago, will be back to assist Sundt as gridiron coach. He will again have charge of the line.

The 1923 schedule is:

Oct. 6—Northwestern at Ripon.
Oct. 13—Marquette at Milwaukee.
Oct. 20—Stevens Point at Ripon.
Oct. 27—Open.
Nov. 3—Lawrence at Appleton.
Nov. 10—Carroll at Ripon (homecoming.)
Nov. 17—Oshkosh Normal at Oshkosh.
Nov. 24—Beloit at Beloit.

By BRYN GRIFFITHS.

Although the Kenosha Simmons baseball nine defeated the Madison Blues 7 to 4 at Kipp field Thursday afternoon at the "Booster Day" game, the ability of "Hank" La Hail, local boy, as a pitcher was firmly entrenched in the minds of followers of the local aggregation. About 2,200 fans saw La Hail in action, and up until the seventh frame he had allowed the Mid-West league leaders but four hits, while his team mates had pounded Steele, Kenosha hurler, for six. Errors on the part of his team mates contributed largely to the defeat of the local aggregation, and had La Hail received support throughout the game as he did at times, Madison would today be boasting of a win over the famous Kenosha Simmons.

The Simmons threatened to score in the first frame when La Hail walked two men, but a double-play saved the day.

Lenahan's men started off in big league style in the opening frame, after Powell, the lead-off man, flied out to short. Lenahan singled over second, stole the keystone sack, and made third when Kleinheinz singled into right field, and went to second when Lenahan was thrown out trying to make home. "Rowdy" Elliott proved his value to the team when he followed Kleinheinz and knocked a two bagger into center field, scoring Kleinheinz, Newhouse grounded out, ending the inning.

Simmons Even Matters.

The Simmons evened matters in the second when Burke, who got on through an error by Ruediger and went to second on the same error (a bad peg to first), made third when George erred for the second time that inning when he missed a toss from La Hail, who tried to catch Burke at third on Beall's grounder. Beall made first on a fielder's choice. Steele hit a sacrifice fly, and Beall scored after the catch. Spaulding singled, and Kopf flied out to Elliott ending the inning.

Simmons Score in 5th.

In the fifth the Simmons counted again when Cruthers got on through Ruediger's error and made home when Powell muffed a fly in center field. It was a lucky run, and Powell should have had the ball without difficulty.

Blues Get Two in 6th.

Madison took a one run lead in the sixth when two Blue clad players crossed home plate. Kleinheinz, the first man up, failed to get on. He grounded out to Beall. Elliott was lucky and got on when Kopf at shortstop erred a grounded ball hit by Rowdy. Newhouse singled into right field, sending Elliott to second. Poellman walked, and Newhouse and Elliott each advanced a base. Ruediger was hit by a pitched ball, and Elliott was forced home, and Newhouse, and Poellman advanced a base. Montgomery hit a sacrifice fly, and Newhouse scored after the catch. La Hail struck out, ending the scoring—with Madison on the long end of a 3 to 2 score.

Lucky Seventh!

The seventh was the Simmons big inning, four runs being scored —after two men were out! Spauldin singled into left field, and made second and third when Lenahan made a wild peg toward second, hitting Spaulding and the ball glancing off his shoulder into center field. Kopf got on through a fielder's choice. Cruthers flied out to Powell, and Lenahan, who made the bad peg that permitted Spaulding to get to third, redeemed himself by one of the prettiest plays of the day when he ran near home plate, caught Powell's throw and put Spaulding out three feet from home.

Lenahan Gets Credit.

It certainly was a clever bit of headwork, and the skipper got a big hand for it. It gave new life to the locals but it was short lived. Kopf, who made second on Lenahan's bad peg to catch Spaulding made home when Dixon doubled. Tyson singled into center field, sending Dixon across the plate, and a home run by Jackson, brought Tyson in. Burke was out to Poellman to Lenahan, and the frame ended with the Simmons leading 6 to 3.

Bill Lathrop Gets Homer.

The Blues' only hope in the ninth was in using pinch hitters, and Bill Lathrop, Janesville, pitching for the Appleton Fox River Valley league, was inserted to hit for La Hail. Bill certainly lived up to his reputation as a ball player when he leaned on the apple for a home run into left field. "Duke" Donaldson was inserted to hit for Powell and he flied out to center field. Lenahan also popped one into the center garden, ending the inning.

Simmons Gets Another.

The Simmons sent their last seventh and last run across the plate in the first half of the ninth when Cruthers singled, stole second, made third when La Hail erred Tyson's grounder, and made home on a passed ball by Montgomery.

It was a great exhibition of baseball all the way through and the Simmons aggregation fought as hard against the locals for their runs as they have had to against Mid-West teams, according to officials in charge of the team.

'Don't Be Rough' Firpo Told For Downey Bout

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Luis Angel Firpo, swarthy Argentine contender for Jack Dempsey's heavyweight crown, arrived here late today for his match with Joe Downey, Columbus, O., tomorrow night.

Firpo was accompanied by his fistic cabinet, which included G. Widemer, secretary; Hugh Garland, business manager; Alfred Mayer, Argentine newspaperman; and Carlos Vega, interpreter.

If Firpo gets rough in his fight, the bout will be stopped, according to an ultimatum from Governor Mc Cray today.

The governor, who stopped the bout August 8, called in Sheriff Snider and told him he would be held responsible for upholding the law barring anything but boxing exhibitions.

Tex Rickard Denies Dempsey Not Signed

NEW YORK—Vigorous denials from practically every one concerned on Thursday followed the rumor that Harry Wills would substitute for Luis Firpo as Jack Dempsey's opponent in the championship bout at the Polo grounds, on Sept. 14. The rumor had it that Dempsey had not yet signed for the match and that he did not want Firpo as an opponent, but was ready to sign to meet Wills. The entire story was denied by Tex Rickart, by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and by Dan McKetrick, Kearns' associate in business, who was originally quoted as authority for the story.

Report for August 17, 1923

Wheat Prices Higher; Corn Also Is Firm

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Moderate upturns in the value of wheat took place today after a brief period of weakness at the start. Initial declines were ascribed to selling based on a setback on questions in Liverpool. Other interests here however, were persistent buyers of the December delivery and with Canadian crop reports bullish, the general market soon developed strength. Opening prices which ranged from ⅜c decline to ⅛c advance with Sept. 1.00½ to 1.00⅝ and Dec. 1.04⅞ to 1.05, were followed by a slight general sag and then by gains all around.

Subsequently little attention was paid to bullish news and selling became of greater volume than could be readily absorbed.

CORN—Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. After opening at ⅛c off to ⅜c advance, Dec. 63⅝ to 63½, the corn market scored fair general gains.

Corn closed unsettled at ⅛c net decline to 1⅝c advance with December 62⅝ to 63½.

OATS—Oats started unchanged to ⅜c higher, Dec. 38⅞ to 39. Later all the months were a little higher.

PROVISIONS—Lower quotations on hogs pulled down provisions.

CHICAGO CHEESE

CHICAGO—Cheese trading in the market here yesterday was fair with buyers in general taking only enough goods to carry them along. The feeling appeared no more than steady but prices on all styles were well maintained because of the replacement cost. While the available stocks were not large at present, it was expected with slightly higher prices that considerable cheese would be replaced on the market. Longhorns continued light in supply.

Stock Market Mixed; Oils In Record Slump

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Speculative sentiment was slightly unsettled at the opening of todays' stock market, as a result of the overnight hitch in the coal negotiations. The main tendency, however, still appeared to be upward with Studebaker, Baldwin and a number of the other standard issues opening fractionally higher. Middle States Oil dropped to another new low for the year. Heavy buying of the oil shares brought a general rallying in the early dealings. Houston Oil advanced 2 points and California Petroleum and Marland one each with a number of others improving fractionally. Foreign exchanges opened irregular.

Building Up Calvin Coolidge

THE reactionary newspapers of the country are now engaged in the work of "building up" Calvin Coolidge with a view to making him the candidate for the presidency in 1924. A man whom the old guard leaders had decided to turn aside because he would not bring any strength to the ticket in 1924, is, by fate, suddenly thrust into a strategic position and, through the immense power and patronage that a president is able to wield, the man who was to be thrust aside becomes a formidable presidential candidate of the powers of reaction.

Consequently we are hearing from the politicians and the newspapers that Coolidge is a strong man. We are told how he dealt with the Boston police strike. An appeal is made to the common folks of the country by reiteration of the story that the Coolidges lived in a $50 flat. The setting under which Mr. Coolidge took the presidential oath—the kerosene lamp on the little Vermont farm, etc.—is being exploited as an appeal to the farmer vote.

All this is being done to popularize Calvin Coolidge—a narrow, uninspiring reactionary who has, by odd tricks of chance, suddenly found himself in the highest station within the gift of the American people.

ON this page today we are printing an article entitled: "Calvin Coolidge: Made by a Myth" from The Nation. It shows graphically how Coolidge "was made" on a situation for which he was not entitled to credit. We trust that our readers will read this article as an example of how a man can be foisted on the public through situations manufactured by the newspapers.

The well informed man at the nation's capital knows that Coolidge is not a man who has impressed Washington in the time that he has been vice president. In fact, the republican leaders, prior to the death of Harding, realized that Coolidge would not be an asset to the ticket in 1924 and they were casting about for a strong candidate for vice president who would appeal to the middle west.

The practical old guard leaders were not impressed with the "strong man" propaganda that appeared in the newspapers at the time of the Boston strike.

ONE of the first official acts of Coolidge is indicative of what may be expected during his regime. The new president appoints C. Bascom Slemp of Virginia as his private secretary. Slemp attained national notoriety several years ago when it was shown that federal patronage was being manipulated for cash considerations and for party advantage. In the "Dear Ben" letter it was shown that Slemp had a hand in manipulating postoffices in the south.

Slemp is not a man who is endowed with secretarial talent nor is he the type of man usually picked for such a position. He is wealthy and has served in congress for 14 years. He is two years older than Coolidge. Slemp is picked because he can bring the southern delegates into the Coolidge tent in 1924. He is placed in a strategic position where he can bring pressure on places where delegates can be produced. We predict that the country will hear considerable about Mr. Slemp in the next few years.

THE NATION pictures the present situation eloquently when it says:

> And now the Presidency sinks low, indeed. We doubt if ever before it has fallen into the hands of a man so cold, so narrow, so reactionary, so uninspiring, and so unenlightened, or one who has done less to earn it, than Calvin Coolidge. A child of marvelous fortune, he becomes the thirtieth President of the United States because of a newspaper fiction which falsely presented him to the country as a great and vigorous personality who in a dark and troubled hour had saved Boston from a strike misrepresented as a wanton blow at law and order by some of its duly constituted authorities. In an hour when America aches for constructive leadership of a broad and liberal kind its official destinies are to rest for a year and a half in the hands of one whose writings and public utterances reveal no spark of originality, no vision, no tolerance, no sympathy with progress and advance. Every reactionary may today rejoice; in Calvin Coolidge he realizes his ideal, and every liberal must be correspondingly downcast. Fortunately, there are checks and balances in Washington; the Congress still lives. Fortunately, in this case, the President is not today a free agent. Fortunately, not even the prestige of the office will conceal the intellectual nakedness of a man whom a Minnesota audience refused last year to listen to after a brief taste of his discourse.

Calvin Coolidge: Made by a Myth

President Obtained National Advertising to Which He Was Not Entitled While Governor of Massachusetts; When Policemen's Strike Was at a Crisis the Governor Could Not Be Found.

[From the Nation]

Calvin Coolidge is President of the United States because of a fiction. A fiction lifted him overnight from the comparative obsurity of State politics into national view and gave him the reputation which led to his nomination for the Vice-Presidency in 1920.

In 1919 the public was given to understand that Mr. Coolidge, then Governor of Massachusetts, had broken the Boston police strike and restored order to a helpless and crime-menaced city by his courage, firmness, and patriotism in calling out the State militia. Calvin Coolidge was hailed as a savior of the nation from the forces of disintegration and disorder. Since Mr. Coolidge has succeeded to the Presidency the story has been retold by nearly every newspaper in the country; it is the cornerstone of his career. The only flaw is that it rests on about the same foundation of historical truth as the legend of George Washington and the cherry tree. The police strike was broken by public opinion, led by a business-controlled press, while order was restored by militia in Boston called out by Andrew J. Peters, the mayor. Governor Coolidge sat discreetly on the fence until he saw on which side public sentiment was gathering. When this had manifested itself against the police, and after Boston's danger had been averted, Governor Coolidge climbed down from the fence on the side with the crowd and issued a bombastic proclamation needless mobilizing the entire State Guard.

In recounting this today we are not actuated by hostility toward Mr. Coolidge personally. Amid the flood of sentimentality and banality that is filling our daily press it is right that some people should know that the reputation by virtue of which he has risen to our highest public office rests upon a fiction. Nor is what we have to say an expression of editorial opinion. It is drawn from Document 108, 1919, of the city of Boston, in which in 5,000 words a citizens' committee tells without comment the story of the police strike. This committee was not a body of radicals or of partisans. It was appointed, it is true, by a Democratic Mayor, and its chairman, James J. Storrow, of Lee, Higginson and Company, was of like political faith, but its other members were of various parties, including leading lawyers, bankers, and merchants. The president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was on its executive committee, and its report was indorsed by a special resolution of that body. Its finding have never been disputed by Mr. Coolidge; but (oh, irony of history!) they were withheld from the public until a month after the police strike was over; until accidental and purposeful misrepresentation in the press had established the Coolidge myth throughout the country.

This citizens' committee was appointed in August, 1919, when a police strike had become imminent. It worked out a plan that was apparently acceptable to all parties and sought the assistance of the Governor. The Police Department of Boston is part not of the city but of the State government, and the Commissioner is appointed and removable by the Governor. It would seem, therefore, that a statesmanlike Governor would have been trying to prevent a strike, but when his co-operation was sought Mr. Coolidge replied, "that he felt it was not his duty to communicate with the commissioner on the subject. On Sunday, September 7, with the police trouble at a crisis, the committee sought another meeting with Mr. Coolidge, but the "law and order" Governor was not in Boston, and the committee was not able even to ascertain his whereabouts. The next day, in the words of the committee:

> The Mayor, in co-operation with the members of your committee, again endeavored to obtain a conference with the Governor, and such conference was arranged to take place early in the evening of that day. At that time the commissioner had taken final action in regard to the police officials. . . . Your honor and the members of your committee emphasized the prospective seriousness of the situation which would result from the absence of the great majority of patrolmen, and expressed their strong conviction as to the necessity of troops to the number of not less than three or four thousand to be present in Boston on the following day at 5:45 p. m., either upon the streets or ready in the armories.

To this plea the Governor sent a formal answer the next day. It is sufficient to reproduce merely the final sentence: "I am unable to discover any action that I can take." To quote again from the report of the citizens' committee:

> The volunteer police were not called to duty until Wednesday morning. On Tuesday evening, September 9, riots, disorders, and robbery occurred, and on Wednesday morning, September 10, Your Honor assumed temporary control of the Police Department, acting under the statute of 1885, section 6, chapter 323, which gives Your Honor the power to do so, tumult having then occurred. Your Honor also immediately called out that part of the State Guard located in Boston, which you then had authority to do, and requested the Governor to order out three additional regiments of infantry.

Then follow these brief, illuminating, and, for Mr. Coolidge, annihilating sentences: "By Thursday morning order had been generally restored in the city. On Thursday afternoon, September 11, the Governor assumed control of the situation, as indicated by his proclamation of that day."

By way of explanation it is necessary to add only that, up to the actual moment of the policemen's walk-out and the disorder and danger in which Boston found itself in consequence, public sentiment seemed to be pretty evenly divided on the merits of the issue. Then it swung sharply and unmistakably against the policemen. The Governor, who up to that moment had been unwilling to assist in preventing the strike, who had not had troops in the streets to prevent lawlessness after the police walked out, who had left it to the Mayor to call out the National Guard in Boston to protect the city, now took his first public action. On the afternoon of September 11, after the trend of public sentiment was unmistakable, and after "order had been generally restored in the city," the following proclamation appeared:

> The entire State Guard of Massachusetts has been called out. Under the constitution the Governor is the commander-in-chief by an authority of which he could not, if chose, divest himself. That command I must and will exercise. Under the law I hereby call upon all the police of Boston who have loyally and in a never-to-be-forgotten way remained on duty to aid me in the performance of my duty in the restoration of order in the City of Boston, and each of such officers is required to act in obedience to such orders as I may hereafter issue or cause to be issued.
> I call on every citizen to aid me in the maintenance of law and order.
>
> CALVIN COOLIDGE, Governor.

Such are the facts upon which rests one of the most remarkable political myths of our time, a legend by the grace of which Calvin Coolidge has become President of the United States.

—VOICE OF THE PEOPLE—

An Engineer's Plea

Illinois Central Employe Asks Auto Drivers to Show Care at Railroad Crossings

[To the Editor]—As an engineer in the regular passenger service on the Illinois Central System, I have a very intimate and personal interest in the matter of accidents at railway-highway grade crossings. These tragedies are of serious importance to all railway engineers. I should like to make a personal appeal to the public in regard to the crossing problem. The number of fatalities of this kind is rapidly increasing. Every year the list is growing larger. In five years records show that more than 9,000 persons have lost their lives and more than 24,000 persons have been injured in collisions between trains and automobiles at grade crossings. On a recent Sunday—July 29, 1923—a total of thirty-five persons met death when their cars were struck by trains at crossings. Such sacrifice of life, all for lack of taking a few simple precautions, is appalling.

I wish it might be impressed upon all who habitually take hazardous chances at railway crossing the tremendous power that is exerted by a fast-moving train. The average train of eight coaches and locomotive weighs about one and one-half million pounds. Traveling at a speed of sixty miles an hour a heavy train becomes a vast projectile, the force of which, striking a lighter object like a motor car, for instance, is terrific beyond conception. Such a heavy body cannot be brought to a stop instantly. Although the modern airbrake is efficient and powerful to a degree not comprehended by the average person, it cannot control and arrest the momentum of a train all at once. And those who take chances at crossings do not give the engineer must time to stop his train. Usually they rush up at the last moment and try to make it across in front of the engine with a fraction of a second to spare. A train moving at a speed of a mile a minute covers 88 feet in a second. Not many persons can calculate off hand how fast a train is running, especially when trying to beat it to a crossing. They are likely to underestimate its rate of speed.

To eliminate all of the 250,000 or more grade crossings in the country would be too expensive an undertaking under present financial conditions. The railroads have made careful estimates of the probable cost and found it to run around twelve and a half billion dollars. They haven't the money to pay for this work now. It is neither fair nor practicable to expect them to accomplish this impossible task at this time. If they had the money to pay for it, it would require years to finish the work entailed.

Some other solution of the crossing accident menace must be brought out. After all, it ought not be a hard problem to solve. Drivers of cars could solve the whole difficulty instantly by taking a little extra care and precautions when they approach a railway crossing. Every man is able to understand that a moving train is dangerous if it strikes the automobile in which he is riding. It is almost apparent to any reasonable person that the train will not go out of its way to hit anybody. It stays on its track and cannot deviate from its course. An automobile ten feet or even five feet to one side is safe from harm. Is it asking too much to urge motorists to keep off the tracks unless they are absolutely SURE no train is near? No one will be inconvenienced or delayed more than a minute or two at most. It would seem a matter in which the public would be ready and willing to co-operate for its own personal well-being and safety.

No sane person would be expected to go deliberately and stand in the path of a flood, a raging fire or an angry bull. Yet hundreds of persons drive heedlessly in the path of fast running trains which are more deadly than either fire or flood if one happens to hit an obstruction in its path. It isn't an irksome thing to ask—that drivers of cars use all possible precautions. Railway crossings are all plainly marked, in the country with warning signboards visible for long distances. In cities and towns most crossings are safeguarded by audible as well as visible signals, gates and barriers, or watchmen. There is no possible excuse for anyone coming upon a railway track unawares if he has his senses about him. The train itself does not steal upon anyone silently and furtively. It heralds its coming by loud blasts of a whistle and ringing of a bell. All engineers use every means to let the public know their trains are approaching. Both engineer and fireman on every locomotive are tirelessly alert, watching ahead for possible hazards to their own safety or the safety of others. If it is humanly possible, a train will always be stopped before it strikes an object on the track, no matter what that object may be. Will the public do as much toward preventing crossing accidents? If it will, crossing accidents will be a thing of the past.

As a last word, I would emphasize the point TAKE NO CHANCES. If not for your own sake, then for the sake of the engine men and the passengers who are in their care. Take a moment's thought for all those whose safety is menaced by your careless or reckless action. With earnest wishes for the safety of all, I am.—A. G. Stern, Freeport, Ill.

One of our anonymous friends has sent in the prospectus of a new machine that he has just invented. He calls it "the most ingenious contrivance ever sprung upon an unsuspecting public."

"By the simple twist of the wrist," according to the gentleman's claim, "it can be converted into any one of the following useful articles: Jack plane, monkey wrench, stove lifter, glass cutter, scroll saw, safety razor, battle axe, bottle washer, button hook, cherry pitter, weather vane, paint brush, gas lighter, ice tongs, belt buckle, horse clipper, lunch basket, handcuffs, bit stalk. flour sifter, auto crank, ink stand, nail file, corkscrew, vacuum cleaner, currycomb, bootjack, carpet stretcher, nutmeg grater, pota masher, screwdriver, meat chopper, rolling pin, tack hammer, electric bell, flat iron, can opener, key ring, fountain pen, pipe cleaner, padlock, shoe last, music rack, flower pot, egg beater, cold chisel, catsup strainer, fish scaler, oil can, paper weight, rat trap and cigar clipper, and its very presence in the house wards off flies, rats, mice and other vermin, including bill collectors and book agents."

If this machine will do all that is claimed for it, our anonymous correspondent has a fortune made. No home could possibly be without it, as it will apparently do everything but secure a divorce.

This story is told of a former commissioner of the city of Washington, D. C. After taking office he set forth to acquaint himself with all the city activities, says Judge.

In due course he reached St. Elizabeth's, the hospital for the insane. One of the doctors told him to just wander about the place and take his time to seeing it all thoroughly, warning him to humor any of the patients with whom he might come in contact.

Some time later he was amused to find a patient who was having trouble trying to ride a wheelbarrow.

"That is a fine horse you have there," he said.

"This is no horse," said the lunatic scornfully. "This is my hobby."

"I thought it was the same thing," said the commissioner, trying to be agreeable.

"Don't you know the difference between a hobby and a horse?" demanded the patient. "Well, you can get off of a horse."

Poems That Live

EARTH'S CHILDREN CLEAVE TO EARTH

Earth's children cleave to earth—her frail,
Decaying children dread decay.
Yon wreath of mist that leaves the vale,
And lessens in the morning ray.
Look, how, by mountain rivulet,
It clings, as it upward creeps,
And clings to fern and copsewood set
Along the green and dewy steeps;
Clings to the fragrant kalmia, clings
To precipices fringed with grass,
Dark maples where the wood-thrush sings,
And bowers of fragrant sassafras.
Yet all in vain—it passes still
From hold to hold, it cannot stay,
And in the very beams that fill
The world with glory, wastes away,
Till, parting from the mountain's brow,
It vanishes from the human eye,
And that which sprung of earth is now
A portion of the glorious sky.
